

Dear Friends,

First thing first: promises.

Guestbook. As promised it is at our website and it works! Please leaf a note if you like.

Prices. Yes they are at the website too. We offer a great price – quality ratio!

Dates. Done. See website. ( www.proholland.com )

If you want to see this (Sail 2010), travel with us starting August 20th

These three promises are not too difficult. The next one is, but we are sure we can handle this one too

If you book a tour with ProHolland this summer we won't disappoint you!

So don't hesitate. Fill in the reservation form and we will meet each other in our beautiful country to have ten days of pure fun.

Preparations.

Back to business. We have to do another 100.000 things but there is only one thing which always will come first: safety. Always.

Ice: In Case of Emergency.

Ice is a well know international helpful item to put in your mobile phone. Every police- and fireman or paramedic knows who to call in case something bad happened to you. Help them and put the right number in your mobi under ICE.

Right of way and road signs.

Specially for our friends from North America.

Written by Juff Munn. An American tourist travelling through Europe on a motorcycle.

If you can obtain an international road sign pamphlet before you come to Europe. Try your local AAA. Also be aware that Europeans are much better drivers than Americans because the cost of operating a vehicle is so high and their standards are so stringent. The German autobahn has no speed limit because everyone knows the rules and ADHERES to them. It boils to this.....stay right, yield right. NEVER get in the left lane of the autobahn in any country unless you are passing another car. Overtake and immediately get back in the farthest right lane that you can. In towns, you must always yield to a car on the right, if there are no traffic control devices or signs. Be aware that in many small towns, there are no traffic control signs or markings on many of the intersections. Always look right and yield right. Europe is not America and there isn't a road sign every five feet telling you what to do. The Europeans EXPECT you to know what you are doing, and to know their rules. Some will blast through an intersection and take their right of way without even looking to the left. It is your responsibility to know when to yield.

In short: yield to the right, never do any speeding and be very careful.

Very safe, to signal inside your garage.....

Leaf a message in our guestbook and have a great summer (and spring!)

Regards,
